A WORLD OF FLAVORS

Salvador Molly's

The Legend

In the days of old when pirates were bold, there lived a young captain named Salvador. At loose ends one summer, he visited the mountain hideaway of a crafty old wizard who commissioned him to go on a long voyage to plunder the coastal towns of tropical lands around the globe. He sailed into the mists and didn't return for several years.

When Captain Salvador finally returned, his ship was laden not with gold and silver but with exotic herbs, spices, powders and the secret recipes of kings and peasants alike. It seems the young stud got into his grog early in the voyage and became bewitched by the lusty beauty and spicy cooking of an island princess named Molly. Enchanted by her sensuous charms and worldly appetites, Salvador took Molly around the world searching for more secrets of gastronomic delights. When the duo finally came home, the wizard (not a big eater beyond bat wings and such) was not amused by the lack of earthly treasure. In a blind rage, his eyes glowing with a purple light, he cursed the two young pleasure seekers "for your treachery, you shall sail the seas for a thousand years and never find a home."

Now, from time to time on a moonlit night at a secret spot on the Willamette, a glowing sailing vessel may be seen docking briefly while the ever young Salvador and Molly unload their precious, exotic culinary treasures. A mysterious emissary shows up at our restaurant back door the next morning to trade herbs, spices and recipes for an island taco. Turn the page for a glimpse of Salvador Molly's most precious treasures or an island taco, whichever comes first.
